

The Future is Open – Rethinking the Operating System

Europe's digital future is negotiated in other boardrooms. That must end.

- Apple
Perfection in a cage
Seamless only if you surrender freedom
- Microsoft
Administration instead of experience
Built for IT, not people
- Google/Android
Openness on display – Closed at the door
A showroom of freedom, guarded by a gatekeeper

For decades, we were told to choose:
open OR simple.

We refuse that choice.

You don't build the future on patched foundations.

Tomorrow demands a base that doesn't crack, doesn't compromise, doesn't belong to yesterday.

One OS. Many Devices. No walls.

Seamless as Apple. Open as Linux.
Without cages. Without chaos.

Resilient. Safe. Open.

Rust for safety.
Microkernel for stability.
RISC-V for sovereignty.

Without tools, no ecosystem.

nexus Studio. The bridge between vision and reality.

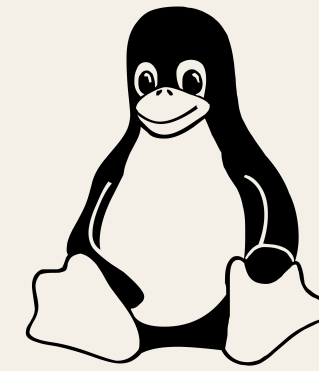

Why not Linux?

Brilliant
on servers.
Broken in your pocket.

Not meant for end-users.
Missing drivers for mobile and business.

*One name.
A thousand incompatible realities.*

Samsung has an ecosystem. Sony doesn't. Linux has thousands of distros, but no single platform. Fragmentation is the opposite of an OS.

Europe's digital future is negotiated on other boardrooms.

Unless we build sovereignty ourselves.

“Revenues in Europe/Global 2024:

- Microsoft (global): ~ 245 B USD
 - Apple (Europe): ~ 101 B USD
 - Android / Google ecosystem (app side global): ~ 48 B USD”
-

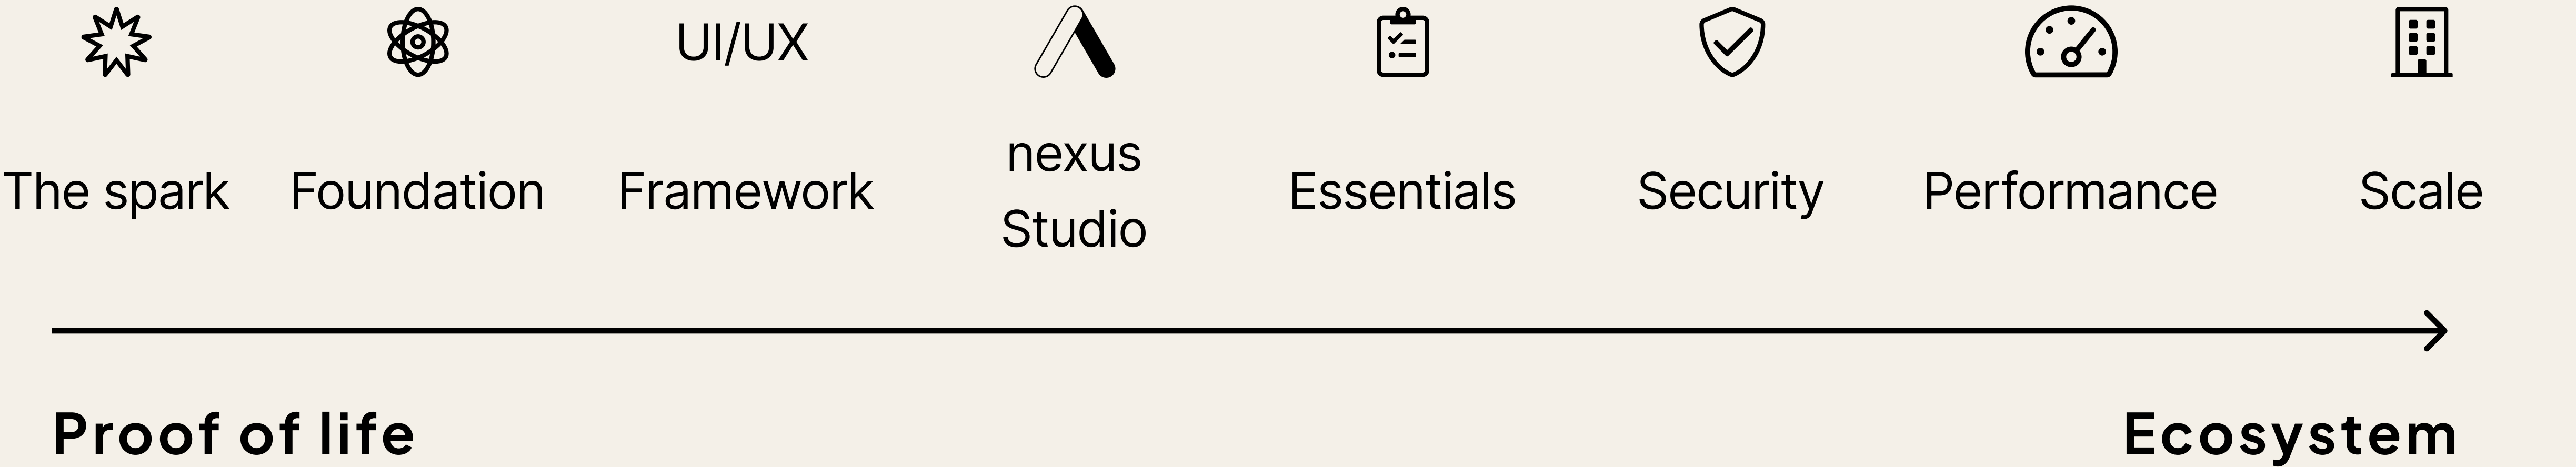

We don't fight for crumbs of their pie. We build the oven where new pies will be baked — not only in their markets, but in cars, homes, and every device to come.

The OS is free. The ecosystem is the business.

- App marketplace (Dev share & add-ons)
- Managed cloud services & data hosting
- Hardware / driver certification fees
- Subscription features (enterprise, compliance)

Not slides. Not dreams.
Running code, every milestone.

We don't want investors. we want co-builders.

To build this, the world's best minds and millions are needed. But movements don't start with millions. They start with people who believe.

An initial €50k keeps the spark alive and the work moving until the first partners join. The real capital we seek is time, talent, and belief.